"ORGY" REPUDIATED BY MEMBERS OF GLENDONIAN CLUB AND GOES ON RECORD

President Griffiths Supplies List of Members, None of Whom Were Present at the Party Discussed in "While Parents Slumber"

FEEL THAT ORGANIZATION MUST BE CLEARED

Investigation of Membership Shows That Not One Member Attended the Affair Which Started the City's Younger Set

The Glendonian club is the first of the young social clubs of Glendale to repudiate any connection with the affair which evoked the editorial, "When Parents Slumber," from the Glendale Daily Press.

With clean-cut manliness, the organization, formed of the younger set in the city, instituted an investigation of its membership as to the possibility of any of its members participating in the affair. It was unable to find that any had gone to the party.

Supplying a list of its members to the Glendale Daily

Press, the officers of the club report the findings of the organization at a special meeting.

Checking over the names, the Glendale Daily Press was unable to find those of any of the boys who attended the party.

The letter from the officers of the club, whose higher ideals are accentuated by the action, is reproduced as follows:

Oct. 10, 1922.

To the Editor,

Glendale Daily Press.

In your issue of October 10, in which you expose a "party" in a neighboring town, the Glendonian club feels that it deserves to be publicly so on record as not having participated in said "orgy." Since it has been rumored by the "Glendale resident" that the Glendonian club engineered the "party" we feel that it is only just that we be vindicated.

A special meeting of the organization was called October 10 because of this rumor, and investigation it was found that NOT ONE member was present at the "party." The following are the members of the Glendonian club:

Alvin Anderson, Glenn Augustus, George Baxter, Alfred Beebe, Brigham Bennett, Floyd Carrick, Roger Dennison, Jas. Gonzales, David Griffiths, Tom Griffiths, Kenneth Jenkins, Langley Meredith, Harry Meriken, Harry McCuskey, Allan McPherson, Jerry Parker, Allan Swayze, Van Wormer, and Val Wilson.

We regret exceedingly that this deplorable event has taken place and we sincerely hope that it will neither prejudice nor influence the people of Glendale against any future social function given by the Glendonian club, or those of any other clean organization.

Hoping this receives the attention it deserves, we remain, Yours very truly,

The Glendonian Club.
C. T. Griffiths, President.
C. G. Parker, Secy-Treas.

POSTMASTER IS TO PUSH RURAL ROUTE WORK

To Urge Reorganization in Time to Meet Christmas Rush

Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson says that the rural route reorganization which he hoped would be effected this month has been delayed by the department at Washington which wants to postpone it until December 1. He has written a letter of protest urging an earlier date because December 1 will carry it into the Christmas rush.

Speaking of Christmas reminded the captain postmaster of Santa Claus deliveries and he confided that he has been trying to interest some of the local auto dealers to rent him five or six trucks to handle the Christmas mail. In addition the high school boys, with and without autos, will also be pressed into service and all such students desiring work of this kind should register at the postoffice prior to November 1.

Some misunderstanding seems to exist in the community, Postmaster Jackson says, concerning the identity of the forger, J. Leon Greer, sent by the government to the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, recently to serve a term of 18 months. Inquiries have been made as to whether he was the Mr. Greer formerly employed in the Glendale postoffice as window clerk. In justice to him the postmaster says that man is William E. Greer, who is holding a responsible position in the Los Angeles postoffice.

REAL ESTATE IS THE PULPIT APPROVES NOT TIRED MAN'S OCCUPATION

So W. Ross Campbell Tells Realty Board at Luncheon

October 11, 1922

"There are many ways of reaching the customer," said W. Ross Campbell, one of the largest realty operators in Southern California, in his address before the Glendale Realty Board members Wednesday noon.

"One of the best of these are the advertisements in the classified columns. But the trouble with most people is that they insert the ad, then put their feet on the desk and wait for results. That's the wrong method. You've got to work in the real estate business as you have in any line of endeavor. The human element figures largely in this business."

"You should know to whom to talk. You can't expect to interest a meat packer in erecting a plant in a fruit raising country. Pick out your prospects for any certain deal and results are sure to come. Don't try to put over your hobby. In other words, just because you think a piece of property is a good investment do not try to sell it to every fellow who comes along. Give him what he wants."

"Work to build up the reputation of the profession. If the people believe that the real estate men as a whole are square, they will have confidence in the individual broker. You must be a good buyer as well as a good seller. If your listings are not priced right you cannot expect to sell them."

"After getting the prospect in the office try to find out just what he wants. Few people really know what they are aiming at. You have got to educate them, to a certain extent, up to what they want. There are many people who think the real estate man is in the business simply for the commission he gets out of sales made. Endeavor to discredit this belief. Do this by giving service. Every satisfied client will bring new business, and by continuing business on the straight for a while you will have worked up a good, substantial business."

"It is the best thing in the world to visit your clients after the sale is made, from time to time. Don't talk of business, just see how they are getting along. The real estate field is unlimited. The extent to which you work it depends entirely on the broker."

The matter of commercial advertising display signs was taken up and Mayor Robinson and City Manager Reeves were requested to present a copy of the city ordinance regulating these boards at the meeting of the board next week.

The daylight freight switching over the Pacific Electric railroad in Glendale was taken up and discussed at length. Mayor Robinson stated that the Pacific Electric had been instructed to discontinue this practice.

MAN DIES IN MERCHANTS' TEAM MYSTERIOUS REORGANIZATION AUTO CRASH IS PLANNED

Patrick J. Conway Found Dying in Capsized Car

Plans for a through reorganization of the Glendale Merchants' Association and the addition of several major league players to the local ball team are being made by John A. Cobb, manager of the club.

There will be no more games at the old park at San Fernando and Park. A building will be erected on the present site of the diamond in the near future.

Manager Cobb stated today that a new enclosed park will be built in the northern part of the city.

"An enclosed baseball park will be a big boost to Glendale," said Cobb, "I am negotiating with a major league club for the exclusive use of the proposed park for their spring training."

Many local fans exhibited keen enthusiasm over the new park and the prospect of watching some of the "big boys" do their stuff.

The Calpac Paint team, the Merchants and two other semi-professional clubs were recently placed in class "A" by the directors of the Southern California Baseball Association for a series of "winter league" games. Only the strongest aggregations were selected and Manager Cobb feels proud of the local team for their showing. They won 21 out of 27 games played.

$10,000 READY FOR P. E. TO LOWER RAILS

Practically All of the Bonus Is Collected and Awaits Road's Action

Practically all of the $10,000 needed for the lowering of the Pacific Electric tracks on Brand boulevard from Colorado street south, has already been paid into the bank by the subscribers to this proposition, and it is now up to the railroad company to begin the work of bringing the tracks down to grade. The collection of the amount that is outstanding, which is to take care of the intersections of streets, is being guaranteed by the city of Glendale.

A communication is being forwarded to the Pacific Electric company by the Glendale city officials today, informing them of this fact, and asking that the work of lowering the tracks be started at the earliest possible moment. This money is to be paid over to the railroad company just as soon as the work is completed.

S. Berman, who is responsible for this money being raised, when speaking of the proposition this morning, said:

"It now looks as though dirt will be flying within a few days. It depends entirely on how soon the Pacific Electric company can get its men to work on the proposition. It should not take a great while to complete the lowering process, after which Brand boulevard, thru the business section of Glendale, will be one of the finest streets in Southern California."

COMMUNITY SERVICE PLAN ADVOCATED BY R. D. WHITE AS "PART" EVIL SOLUTION

Superintendent of City Schools Approves Program for Young People of the City at P. T. A. Meeting

RECREATIONAL CENTER IS PROPOSED

Declares Committee Appointed Last Spring to Investigate Proposition Should Be Supported in Putting Forth an Organization to Meet Situation

When Richardson D. White, superintendent of city schools, was called upon at the meeting of the Federation of Parent-Teacher associations, held Wednesday afternoon in the cafeteria of the high school, he advanced a constructive program to correct evils in social life to which a few of the young people of Glendale have been exposed, as revealed in the editorial which appeared in the Tuesday issue of the Glendale Press. His theme was, "Community Service Incorporated," or the organization of a recreational center by one of the representatives paid by the national organization to do such work. A local committee to push the matter composed of representatives of all the important organizations in the city was appointed last spring, but has never functioned. Said he:

"The thing that interests me most is the provision of proper amusement for boys and girls who have been graduated from the high school. We know these young people are going to have recreation. The problem is, are they going to get the right kind? I do not believe the Press would have published its editorial if it had not been in possession of facts to back it up. If we provide proper recreation for our young people, we can easily stamp out that sort of thing. We must not simply sit up and say 'don't do it.' This form of recreation that community service proposes are varied. One is the forming of community musical organizations such as choruses under a trained leader. Most of the leaders will be directed by one paid head. I have seen reports from some cities in which the whole thing was conducted with just two people drawing salaries, a director and a secretary."

There are also the athletic forms of recreation. You and I know that is the thing our young people lack after they leave the high school. We should put lights on the tennis courts out there and invite the young people over high school age to use them. Twice recently I have been to Brookside Park in the evening and both times I watched the tennis play and saw Glendale young people on the courts.

Then there would be the organizing of dramatic clubs. We have lots of talent longing to express itself and a wonderful work could be done there. This community service work does not end with the young people mentioned. It takes in the vacation playground and also provides recreation for the older people.

"I do not know enough about this myself to go much more into detail. The immediate need is to call together a committee and form a temporary organization to work out a permanent organization and proceed to raise the necessary budget."

Don T. Orput, national representative of "Community Service Incorporated," was introduced by Mr. White. In responding he said:

"You are the mothers of Glendale and as such you are backing to the limit a recreational program that is promoted by a non-sectarian, non-commercial, non-political organization. Within a little over two years 200 cities have developed a community service program. We do not wave the magic wand and promise wonders. All that we do is to give to the community a type of organization which is new and that is fool proof, an organization that can perfect a recreational program and make possible the things you want along the line of recreation at a minimum expense without currying favor with any faction and without creating dissatisfaction because of the jealousies of factions that may exist in your community."

Dr. Jessie Russell endorsed the proposition and suggested that name P. T. A. association. He named two members of the general organization proposed advising that president and the chairman of playgrounds be appointed.

George U. Moyle, principal of the high school, responded to the call of the president and said: "We must not lose confidence in our young people. We have 1500 enrolled in our school now and of that number I do not suppose there are twenty who cause us any concern in regard to their general moral outlook on life. This statement brought applause. Continuing, he said:

"We have a few who raise these problems. A situation where our young people cannot have a little dance without someone coming in with liquor, is vitally wrong. Those conditions must be changed. There will be pressure brought to bear to take away the social privileges of the young people instead of having them safeguarded."

He referred to the high school "fair," the senior dance in the fall, junior dance at mid-year, and class dances at the close of the school year which have always been chaperoned by five teachers, her home.

EXCHANGE CLUB HEARS KELLY NARRATE

President Tells of Trip to Louisville as Glendale Delegate

The meeting of the Exchange club of Glendale Wednesday noon at the new Broadway Inn, was characterized by an unusually large attendance to hear President Kelly's narrative concerning his recent trip to Louisville, Ky., as a delegate of that organization.

One of the salient features of Mr. Kelly's visit to the metropolis of the Blue Grass state, was that he put Glendale on the map in the southern city.

His appealing words about the advantages of this city were reinforced by descriptive circulars which were handed out without stint.

No opportunity was overlooked to boost Glendale. In fact, on his return trip he made the acquaintance of a couple who intended to settle down in Pasadena.

This was in direct opposition to Mr. Kelly's ethics, and right then and there Glendale became the leading topic of conversation. Result—this couple now owns a home in this city.

While in Louisville, a trip was made to the famous Mammoth Cave, and many other interesting journeys were arranged for the benefit of the visiting delegates. Notwithstanding, President Kelly is certainly glad to be back in Glendale again which he declares to be the world's ideal spot.

Those who desire to donate cooked foods for the sale may bring such donations at the above address, Saturday morning, or communicate with Mrs. W. H. Dorance Garvanza 1924, or with Mrs. A. Boyce Garvanza 624. Cooked foods of all kinds will be accepted, and the funds realized will go for the benefit of the federation of P. T. A.

It is urged that Eagle Rock housewives patronize this food counter Saturday, in buying the Sunday dinner, and thereby help the cause along. Food will be sold delicatessen style.

ANNEXATION TALK IS POSTPONED

There has been a change in the plan for the meeting at the Eagle Rock Congregational church Sunday night. It has been decided to postpone the discussion of annexation, by Godfrey Edwards and Judge H. I. Cruzan, until a later date.

Instead of this discussion, a 3-reel motion picture will be shown, entitled "A Child Shall Lead Them." Dr. Isaac stated that the talks on annexation would come in the near future.

REV. BOB SHULER TO SPEAK HERE ON WRIGHT ACT

Glendale is to have an opportunity to hear Rev. Bob Shuler Saturday night on "Americanism and the California Crisis." The meeting will be held in the chamber of commerce auditorium beginning at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Shuler has delivered this address to multiplied thousands all over the state, creating a sensation wherever he goes. It is understood he will have some rather warm things to say concerning the liquor plank in the platform of Mr. Woolwine, democratic candidate for governor, and will possibly give his views on the Ku Klux Klan which he has discussed very frankly several times. In this meeting, which will be held under the auspices of the local W. C. T. U., emphasis will be given to the necessity of passing the Wright law, and Mr. Shuler as usual, will deliver his soul on the liquor menace, bootleggers, and their ilk.

Truths in Epigram

What shadows we are, and what shadows we pursue!—Burke.
The true test of civilization is not the census, nor the size of cities, nor the crops:—no, but the kind of man the country turns out.—Emerson.
Men resemble the gods in nothing so much as in doing good to their fellow-creatures.—Cicero.

PAYING THE PENALTY

Reports of fatal accidents due to reckless driving seem to increase rather than diminish. A sample of the avoidable tragedies which there was no effort to avoid, occurred Sunday. It was one of several fatal smashes, but achieves distinction for having killed three and possibly four. Seven men were in a machine going at criminally reckless speed. The automobile plunged into a telephone pole, skidded, and the results were unusually severe.

Men who deliberately drive to death, when there is no reason for hurrying, do not have reason to look for much sympathy, whatever happens to them. There could not be very strenuous objection to their conduct, save for the peril to which they subject others. In a sense, they are similar to the men who drink moonshine whisky. Their elimination does not constitute the loss that would have been occasioned, had they been persons of good sense and proper conduct. Nevertheless, it is desirable to check reckless driving for the sake of the persons who may be driven into by speed maniacs. The difficulty of doing this is apparent.

The fact that a reckless driver promotes his own tragic death, has not thus far seemed to be any lesson to survivors of the type. Such a driver never believes that the fate is to come to him. But if every driver who breaks the traffic laws seriously were to be sent to jail, and deprived of his license for a long term thereafter, there would be in this lesson that the dullest in the lot could appreciate.

THE HOPE OF RUSSIA

A traveler back from Russia says the masses there no longer pay much attention to the soviets. Apparently they are learning to regard the regime as a local ailment. They decline longer to look upon it as a plague bound to sweep the country. So the workers have gone back to sowing, that in time they may know harvest again. Much of the wheat sent in for the purpose of feeding them, they devoted to making possible a crop of wheat of their own. They did this although they were hungry, and no adequate supplies of food were available.
The hope for Russia all the time has been that the millions of laborers would rebel against being exploited for the benefit of a tyrannical oligarchy. They have been supporting a vast army that had for its purpose the keeping of all toilers in subjection. The army lived in laziness, on booty gathered by the simple process of stealing. The toilers still have resources, the wealth that came from the royal family not having been exhausted, and the property confiscated from the well-to-do yielding a profit. But they seem to have learned to let the tillers of the soil alone. The revolution against the soviets is not an armed resistance. It is quiet, but is likely to prove irresistible. Now that the land is being cultivated, the Moscow clique hardly would dare to steal the garnered crops. Were they to do so, they might be crushed by sheer numbers. And when their brutal brutality has been a little more fully realized, they may be crushed anywhere. At least, in the very nature of things, there can be no future for Russia until, through violence or through silent pressure, the present misrule has been ended.

"LOVELY THINGS ADD TO LIFE"

Recently a large number of papers in this section have issued editions devoted to better homes. The idea was fine, and it was carried out ably. It touched upon every phase of this domestic establishment, from selection of a site, and the rearing of the walls, to decorations within and without; artistic touches to living rooms, comforts and conveniences for sleeping room and kitchen. The creation of atmosphere was stressed. In one of the papers appeared the following:

"Charm is more than a personal trait. It comes from environment. Those who surround themselves with lovely things find new beauty in life, which reflects itself in their faces, their acts, their thoughts and aspirations."

"This has the sound of Ruskin. Yet it is a truth so evident that any intelligent person might formulate it. The intelligence of a community, the real quality of its people, is expressed in the homes they have fashioned for themselves. Such homes are not of necessity, costly products of architect and builder. They may be small, but indicative of fine taste. They may be inexpensive, and yet make strong appeal to the artistic senses. The setting is almost as important as the actual structure."

This entire section is a place of homes. It affords endless sites that, in the aspect most pleasing to the owner, may be ideal. One desires to live where the sea is in the picture. To another the purple shadows of the mountains seem most satisfactory. A third may want to live in the midst of verdant stretches, with orchards yielding their golden abundance. And all must be happier and better because the world about them is good to look upon.

LLOYD GEORGE'S FIGHT

The premier of England is facing the hardest fight of his official career. Many British papers, some of them of acknowledged influence, and heretofore supporting George, have turned against him. They are addressing themselves to the situation with distinct bitterness. Of course the effect of this is not to be predicted. George is not a man who flees from an enemy. He is ready to do battle for the principles he favors. The mere circumstance that abuse is being showered upon him, is not expected to change his attitude of mind. It may, however, change the attitude of the public mind. When the voters of England become dissatisfied with a ministry, they put it out. The Lloyd ministry, however, has withstood many a storm.

That George has been pro-Greek seems to be the essence of the accusation. The Greeks undertook to settle the Turkish question, and proved incompetent. Still, there was all the time a Turkish question for which settlement was needed. None of the first class powers cared to undertake it. For hundreds of years all of them had been shirking a plain duty. Undoubtedly it would have been pleasing all around had the Greeks been able to put the Turk in his place. Then the larger powers would have directed the course of Greece. The plan was very simple. But the Greeks swarmed in, and when they swarmed out, brought at their heels a host of armed and menacing Turks. Thus the problem, instead of being finished, was hurled unsolved, into the tired and timid hands of European diplomats. No wonder they blamed the Greeks, and blamed anyone whom they regarded as having backed the Greek incursion.

Had Constantine emerged victor, instead of defeated and disgraced, he would have been a hero, and the friendliness of George for him, if such feeling existed, would have been construed as the evidence of lofty statesmanship.

The early fish catches the worm—hook and all.

Cleanliness may be next to godliness, but it takes advertising to sell soap.

MILLENNIAL GLIMPSES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

We are a long way from the Millennium, but we get here and there along the way glimpses of the Delectable mountains.

Let us set down a few. We see in the distance:

1. The day when Co-operation shall supersede Competition as the general rule and motive of Men's Activities. We are already finding out the waste of unnecessary conflict. Already our gigantic fortunes, as well as our political victories, are won by Co-operation.

2. The time is coming when Punishment shall be abandoned as a wholly inefficient method of dealing with crime, and we shall direct our energies toward prevention of crime by improving social conditions, and the cure of the criminal by trying to find out what was the matter with him.

3. The time is coming when we shall regulate Immigration by selecting immigrants before they leave Europe instead of letting anybody come and sending most of them back—a silly and sloppily procedure.

4. The time is coming when the scientific world shall turn its attention almost entirely to Preventive Medicine, instead of devoting, as it does now, its main energies to the study of disease.

5. The time is coming when Labor and Capital shall at last understand that they are both members of the same body, parts of the same thing, and elements of the same substance. They will work together and for each other, and not go on under the delusion that they can find prosperity by fighting one another.

6. The time is coming when every community shall learn how to express its religious emotion in unity, and not in contention; and that people shall recognize that while there can never be a unity of opinion there can be perfect unity in feeling and in service.

7. The time is coming when there will be a unit form Divorce Law throughout the United States, and a couple will not be legally married in New Jersey and bigamists in New York.

8. And the time is coming when war shall cease to be the only possible way it can ever be made to cease—by establishing some universal World Court in charge of the supreme armed force of the world.

Some of these things will be a long while coming, and some may be here before we expect them. (Copyrighted by Dr. Frank Crane)

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

COST OF CORRESPONDENCE

Theodore H. Price, in "Commerce and Finance," makes an estimate of the cost of correspondence. He first figures on the cost of the stenographer's salary, and puts it down at about $25 a week, or $1300 a year.

With office hours from 9 to 5, except on Saturdays, when they are over at 1 o'clock, the week is made up of forty-four hours of 2640 minutes, from which a period of at least forty minutes a day must be deducted for lunch. This would make the net working time 2200 minutes a week, or, with interruptions, about 2200 minutes.

Then Mr. Price deducts two weeks out of the year for vacation, and two more weeks for unavoidable absences and holidays, thus making a year's work of forty-eight weeks comprise about 105,600 minutes.

The employer pays $1300 for this service, or 1.14 cents a minute. Next, it is estimated that the average amount of time spent in dictating and transcribing a letter and in addressing an envelope is ten minutes. This would make the average cost of a dictated letter about 12 1/2 cents, and to the 12 1/2 cents must be added the cost of postage, stationery, carbon paper, filing, indexing, typewriting machines and ribbons, and office overhead, all of which are figured at 3 1/2 cents, bringing the cost up to sixteen cents.

The last item added is the cost of the time of the person that dictates, and the final estimate is twenty-one to twenty-two cents.

After all, business cannot get along without stenographers, and these young women must be adequately paid. Nor can the employer enjoy this facility without the proper equipment. Then, too, he saves much of his own very valuable time, and gets with his stenographic force decidedly greater results than he would if letters were written by hand.

Yesterday's Error
"A claims that usage has made the forty-two dollars and seventy-five cents a collective noun and therefore should take with it a singular verb." The foregoing sentence is faulty in construction. Compare it with the following: "A claims that usage has made the forty-two dollars and seventy-five cents a collective noun, which should be followed by a singular verb." As originally written the subject of should take its usage, which construction is wrong.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

Men count more than systems. More than laws.

More than rules or theories or fine-spun plans. For none of them are useful or serviceable without men.

The world today has need of men.

Not of numbers.

Not of quality.

A sound structure of little size is of more use in the world than an immense, ramshackle and rambling ruin.

We are building a civilization.

Good or bad as the case may be.

And the bricks of it are not wealth or commerce or sham or show or immensity. The bricks of it are men.

And as the bricks are sound so will the building stand or fall.

In men and women and children lies the wealth of the world.

In strong individuals and wholesome leadership.

Leadership that is generous, understanding, unselfish.

Without that leadership we shall relapse into dull mediocrity and eventual decay.

We have philosophies.

The books are full of knowledge.

The experience of all the world has come down to us.

We are the legatees of the wisdom of the world.

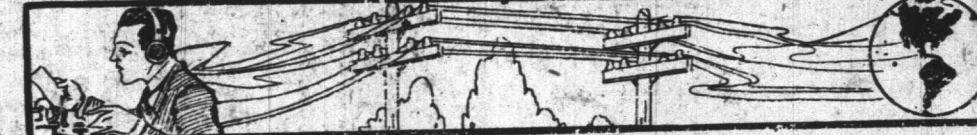

We know what nations have existed.

How they thrived.

What has made them strong and useful.

What has destroyed them.

And it is ours to take heed.

SONGS OF THE POST'S POETS

A Lover's Envy—By Henry Van Dyke (1852—)

I envy every flower that blows

Beside the pathway where she goes.

And every bird that sings to her.

And every breeze that brings to her

The fragrance of the rose.

I envy every poet's rhyme

That moves her heart at eventide.

And every tree that wears for her

Its brightest bloom, and bears for her

The fruitage of its prime.

FIND EARLY MAN'S FIRELESS COOKER

The prehistoric bride in the early bronze age, could boil water without burning the wood, and hide containers which her hunter husband furnished her. Miss Nina F.

Layard, has discovered primitive cooking places at Bucken-ham Totts park, Norfolk, England.

Ancient kitchens, now being excavated by her, are marked by thousands of pits cracked by fire. These rocks were apparently used as heaters for boiling water in vessels which would not stand the fire. They are found a foot or two beneath the sod and invariably in a shallow wooden trough or a stretched hide was in all probability the utensil used. This was filled with water and then the red hot flints were shoveled in. In this way the water was soon brought to a boil.

The bones and teeth of oxen and horses found between the heaters and the stream show where the cooking took place

while with these flint heaters implenents were found which fix the time, as being in the early bronze age.

Ability to shoot straight does not depend on the color of the marksman's eyes or the shade of his hair. Old ideas that a blue-eyed rifleman is a better shot than his brown-eyed buddy are laid to rest by a study of thousands of soldiers made by Col. Weston P.

Chamberlain and Maj. Albert

G. Love, of the army medical corps. They find that length of service is the most important factor in producing bull-eye hits.

The proportion of blue eyes to brown eyes among soldiers of the different races and nativities, qualifying in military marksmanship does not differ from that in the same groups of the general male population

as represented in the army during the world war.

Apparently the ability to qualify in the higher grades of military marksmanship decreases as keenness of eyesight diminishes. The only exception to this being among officers who may have worn errors.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Of course in a perfectly regulated world there would be no "unwritten law" in the sense in which the term is used now. As a matter of fact, there would be more unwritten law than any other kind. The rules of gentility are not reducible to print. They are purely ethical, and compliance with them is a matter of instinct, or acquired by association with refinement. In this imperfect world there seem to be instances in which appeal to "unwritten law" as ordinarily understood, is the only appeal humanly possible.

There is considerable excitement just now over the finding of a man's body in an Arizona irrigation ditch, with plenty of evidence that entry had not been voluntary. There is reason for believing that the man was killed, and then thrown in. There also is reason—with every reservation for possible error of fact—to believe that he got exactly what he deserved. The present great ado is to ascertain who had tossed the man in. A better course would be to bury him, and permit the incident to be closed, and forgotten.

There are male creatures who make it their business to invade homes, to snare wives, who have lists of victims, past and prospective. When one of these creatures is killed, the average of morals is sent up somewhat. There is no loss involved. Often it is said that for one man to kill another on account of a woman is foolish, since no unworthy woman merits such sacrifice and risk. But there are exceptions. The predatory libertine, boasting of his amours, passing the door, in guise of friendship, of homes he schemes to ruin, ought to be thrown into a ditch. The one who throws him there is rendering a public service.

To follow up this matter would be to involve many in scandal, out of which no good could come. And suppose that the slayer be brought to light, what then? No jury would convict him, and written law thus would be swept aside in favor of the "unwritten law," snugly imagined not to exist.

People interested in baseball were disappointed at the outcome of the world series. This was not that the Giants won, but that the Americans failed to wage the contest of which there was every reason to believe them capable. The Americans probably would have been defeated had they done their best, but defeated with honor. They did not do their best. There are teams in the Pacific Coast league that would have given the Giants a harder battle.

When a man charged with serious offense asserts that he is insane, he is running a serious risk. His case goes before a psychiatric board before it reaches the criminal jury. If the board declares him sane, then he stands without any defense whatever, since the attempt to be declared non compos mentis, clearly must be construed as a confession of guilt. No innocent man desires to be rated as crazy.

"Enter O troubled soul" was the greeting of a fake medium to each of his sucker-patrons. Just a little later the police thoughtfully opened the jail door, and made precisely the same remark to the fake medium, who did not seem at all pleased.

Organized opponents of the Volstead law profess great joy over the presidential order making American ships dry on the inside. They go so far as to advocate the issue of blank search warrants by which prohibition agents may enter any home and confiscate all the liquor found there. In other words, the issue of-law enforcement hope to make the law utterly obnoxious. Their expressed approval of the President's act is what is familiarly known as bunk, a derivative, doubtless of the respectable word buncombe.

There is a freshman at Berkeley who is 71 years of age. Doubtless he never feels the impulse to indulge in class fights and similar frivolities. When a man of 71 goes to a university and enrolls as a student, it is probable he realizes that he has no time to waste. It is not singular that a man of ripe age, already well educated, with means to do as pleases him, should elect to brush up on textbooks and to get into touch with the rising generation. When a man gets too old to learn or to desire to learn, life must be an empty thing.

There is one thing that maturity does not learn so quickly as youth, and that is to run an automobile. When grandfather takes the wheel for the first time, there is likely to be something happen, based on the tendency to reach for the foot brakes and kick the accelerator instead.

Because she had undergone the shock of being involuntary witness of an attempted holdup, a young woman killed herself the next day. At about the same time, in the same city, another young woman much sought by the police, was letting herself down four stories by a rope improvised of sheets. There was a third, who observed a man killed in the street, dilly picked the pocket of the corpse. Showing that members of the gentler sex are not of a pattern at all.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

This is not to say I approve of Hank Davis's way of doing business. He's too harsh, it seems to me. He has about as much regard for the other fellow's feelings as the harrow has for the road. Yet—

Maybe I'm wrong. I'll tell the story. Hank, among other activities, is a money-lender. The other day I sat in his small private office, trying to cheat him out of a house and lot I had a fancy for. A nice, honest-looking, blue-eyed, worried-looking boy appeared.

"I'd like to extend my note, Mr. Davis," he began.

"You can't," said Hank. "Time's up. Pay."

The reason why was that the nice boy had extended his note twice before. Once it went to protest. The second time he did not come in until he was telephoned for. He had forgotten it, he said. The third time was the last time for Hank.

"I never do business with a man who does not do his business on time," said the old gentleman. "And you are too far behind the clock to suit me. I do not doubt that you are as honest a colt as was ever foaled. I know the security is good, for I would not have accepted it otherwise. But I am so constituted that while I can extend a man's paper indefinitely if he comes around in plenty of time and talks turkey, I would not loan a man who is late with his undertakings the value of a second-hand cigar butt."

The youngster paid, which is not a matter of vast importance to this story. Hank said good-by, and told him again.

"And don't make a mistake," said he, snarling, "if you had not brought me the money I'd have sold you up."

Yet the same day he loaned money to a kid who wanted to start a little business of his own. The only security he could offer was that he was always on time for his engagements.

"That is security enough," said Hank.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

A BOOK FOR YOUR CHILD

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers)

A really unique and uncommonly useful book has come to my attention. It is a book by Gaylord Johnson, and it carries the odd title of "The Sky Movies."

Advised as a book for children, there are many "grown-ups" to whom it should also make a strong appeal. Certainly it will be found helpful—and vastly entertaining—to all who, ignorant of the stellar universe in which they live, have begun to wonder about its phenomena and the laws governing them.

To elucidate these in a simple and interesting way is the chief purpose of Mr. Johnson's book. It makes plain the relative positions of the sun, moon, earth and planets and their movements in space. It leaves no doubt as to why the moon keeps changing in appearance. It shows how to tell the time from the stars as from the sun.

This constitutes the subject matter of "The Sky Movies," together with much more in the way of elementary astronomy. But there is nothing of the academic in its presentation of the fascinating perplexing facts with which it deals.

On the contrary, it is essentially on the story book order, and on the order of a story book delightfully reminiscent alike of "Alice in Wonderland" and of an old-time tale of life on a farm. The fairy Puck has a conspicuous place in it and under his guidance and the assistance of a sagacious uncle the children who are its leading characters work out the astronomical problems given them to solve.

They work them out, moreover, by the aid of materials—tops, balls, palls, lanterns, barrel hoops, etc.—available to every child. So that those children fortunate enough to obtain this book will find in it games as amusing as they are instructive.

They will find in it, too, pictures stimulating the curiosity as well as giving information in a graphic way. Best of all, they will find in both the pictures and the text, incitements to real seeking and real thinking—the seeking and the thinking for lack of which many people go through life only half awake and far less successful than all ought to be.

"Ode me!" cried Puck. "I am the Joy of Finding Out Things. I sat on Columbus' shoulder when he saw the new world's land; I took the first peep through his new telescope with Galileo; I watched with Edison while his first electric light bulb glowed, then frightened and shone."

"They were all called crazy, but they didn't care, for they had the answer to their wonderings—the Joy of Finding Out Something New."

How many there be who never have this joy—and never appreciate what they miss by not having it.

Don't let your own little ones lapse to their unspiring, unachieving state. And recognize that a book such as Gaylord Johnson's will help safeguard them from this luckless lapse.

G. B. Burgin, in his recently published "Memoirs," relates the following anecdote: A short time ago Stephen Leacock was the guest of a literary club to which I belong and when I was called on to speak I explained how that morning I had been walking in Highgate cemetery and paused by the tomb of Lord Strathcona. One of the cemetery custodians joined me and said, regretfully: "Lord Strathcona" the only distinguished Canadian we have here. Then he brightened up a little. "But there's a vacant lot beside his lordship."

Whereupon I explained to him that curiously enough I was going to meet another distinguished Canadian that evening and would try to induce him to make the necessary arrangements for occupying the vacant space by Lord Strathcona. Leacock listened to this with strained attention. On rising to reply he disregarded the points made by the other speaker and said: "While I am deeply grateful to Mr. Burgin for his thoughtful arrangements regarding my obsequies, I regret to inform him that they will have to be cancelled, as I have already decided to be buried in Westminster Abbey."

The advantage of being a bachelor is that when other people's children are put into your arms you never know what to say.

George Weldon was a bachelor, and for this reason was always putting his foot in it when he visited the parents of a new baby.

It happened again. The mother put the wriggling, hoarse bundle of humanity in his arms.

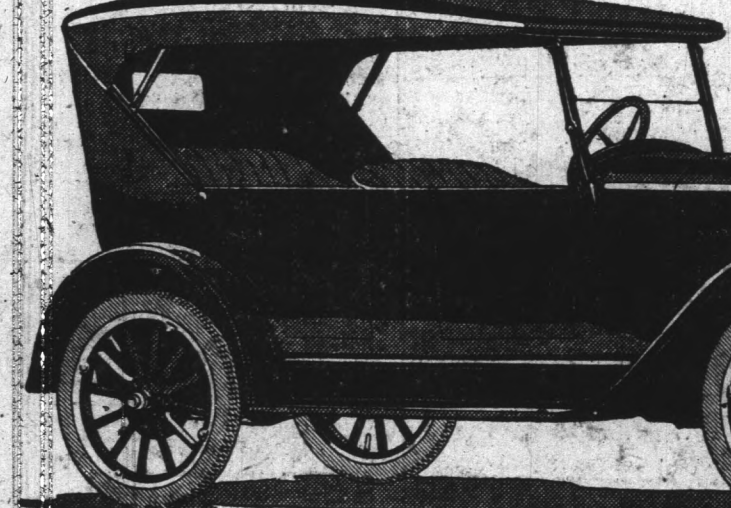

She gazed proudly in silence for a few seconds; and then asked: "Whom do you think baby takes after—his father or I?"

George Weldon, Esq., was confused.

"Er—um—he's not very intelligent looking, is he?" he stammered. "But I think he's like both of you!"

THE CAROLINAS were founded as one colony in 1663 under a charter granted by Charles II of England. Charleston was founded in 1680. Because of the growth of two settlements, the names North Carolina and South Carolina were heard as early as 1691, but two colonies were not made and provided with separate governors until 1711.

MEXICO PASSES UP WOODEN PLOW

Mexico City, Mexico.—The day of the wooden plow in Mexico is passing.

Through a governmental agency the most modern of American agricultural implements are being furnished the Mexican farmer, particularly the small farmer.

These implements are being sold by the government at cost and cheaper than they could be purchased by Mexicans from direct sources, because the government purchases the implements in large quantities. The saving to the farmers is very large.

The agency having charge of the implements is known as the commercial branch of the department of agriculture and operates solely to develop agriculture and assist the smaller farmers.

Sections of the country which never before saw anything but a wooden, homemade plow are now using the best implements that the United States can produce.

All of the implements are purchased from the United States with the exception of two or three little pieces of machinery. A special freight rate is also secured in Mexico.

A full line of every modern implement is kept on hand and farmers are given time in which to make payments. Usually twenty-five per cent is paid when purchase is made but if the farmer cannot afford this he is given a certain time to make this initial payment.

At the present time there is approximately $2,000,000 worth of farm implements in government warehouses. The implements are generally purchased through representatives of American firms stationed in Mexico and payments are taken care of by a special appropriation for the department of agriculture.

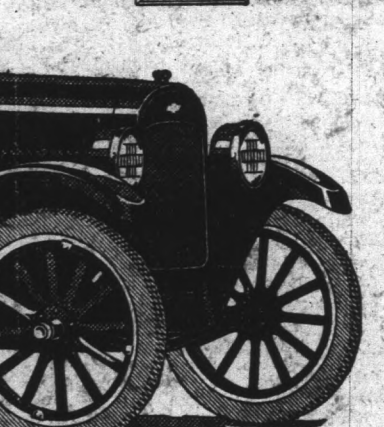

A new plan is being projected, however, whereby an agricultural cooperative organization formed by the government will take care of the purchase of the implements and will also arrange for credits to the farmers.

Bernardo Felix is the chief of the commercial branch of the department of agriculture in the Republic and F. J. Lobo is in charge of the Mexico City office.

HAS SAXAPHONE CRAZE.

London.—Following the American burlesque show "Chuckles," recently produced here, there has been a perfect mania for saxaphones. Every vaudeville show contains at least one exponent of this instrument on its bill, while doctors, lawyers and other professional men, who formerly gave musical evenings to their friends on violins and harps, are now jazzing out snappy tunes on the snappy saxaphone.

MARITZA RIVER IS BOUNDARY LINE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 11.—

"The Maritza river, boundary of the European territory which the victorious Turks demanded as soon as they drove the Greeks from Asia Minor, is, like the Rhine, between France and Germany, a symbol and bone of contention among Bulgaria, Greek and Turk," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society.

"Each of these three peoples has claimed the Maritza valley as belonging to it on ethnic grounds," continues the bulletin, "and such is the racial mix-up in Thrace and the portion of Macedonia which adjoins it, that each has at least some excuse for its claims. Thrace—and indeed all of Rumelia or Rumili—as the Turks called the portions of Europe which their swords conquered—has for five hundred years been in the anomalous condition of being Turkish territory, yet more Christian than Mohammedan, more alien than Turk. Moreover, the non-Turks non-Mohammedans were more intelligent and more industrious than the Moslems; a fact which has heightened the non-Turkish aspect of the country in spite of the burden of heavy taxation, persecution and massacre which the non-Turks have had placed on their shoulders."

"More or less unconsciously the Turks seem, throughout their tenure of half a millennium in Europe, to have considered themselves engaged in a military occupation. In the trade and industry of the towns and cities they did not and could not compete with the Greeks and Jews and Armenians; and in the agricultural pursuits of the country they were equally outclassed by the Bulgars and Vlachs and the occasional Greeks who are farmers."

"Many of the Turks confine their activities to the cities where they were rulers of soldiers. Those who led the lives of peasants never wholly shook off their nomadism. They were less efficient than their despised Christian neighbors, a fact which led to many a pillaging and massacring expedition; for the Moslems, however humble their station, were armed, while the Christians were not."

"Eastern Thrace between the Straits and the Maritza river is of little value agriculturally. It is an unattractive, dreary, monotonous plain with here and there swampy depressions. Large areas of the territory are uncultivated and in summer they give the country the appearance of a desert. When the Bulgarians finally controlled the region after the Balkan war of 1912-13, they took to Asia Minor, and under the Greek control of the past few years that movement has continued. To a result the Thrace of today is even more strikingly non-Turkish than in the past."

"On the Maritza and in Thrace, barely 25 miles from the present Bulgarian border, is Adrianople, second city of old European Turkey, and a strong sentimental reason for the Turk's desire once more to possess Thrace. Thracian land was the first in Europe to fall under Turkish sway, and while Constantinople still remained Byzantine, Adrianople was the Ottoman capital. From there they crushed the Serbians, and finally, in 1453, seized the great city on the Straits. There, though in ruins, is the first European palace of the Sultans and the grave of the first Sultan, Murad."

"Formerly Adrianople was a thriving center of trade. But as the European portion of the Ottoman Empire dwindled, and Bucharest, Athens, Belgrade and Sofia, released from Turkish control, grew from dingy mud villages to bustling towns, Adrianople lost ground. The city still contains about 50,000 inhabitants, however, with the Greeks, Bulgars, Jews and other non-Moslem peoples greatly outnumbering the Moslems."

Commander Samson, of the British Air Force, has been rushed to Constantinople to command British airmen in the crisis in the Near East.

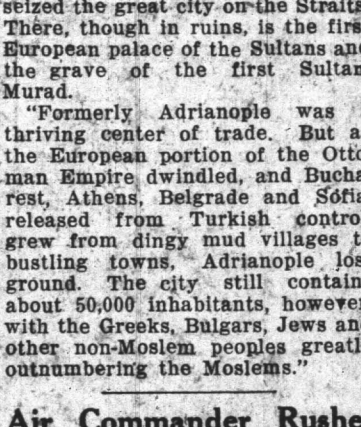

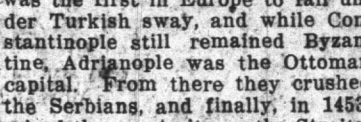

AN AUSPICIOUS BEGINNING. "Where did you first become acquainted with your present husband?"

"I was out walking with my first husband when my present husband ran over him with his machine. That was the beginning of our friendship."

OUT OF MOUTHS OF BABES
Little Lea, who had to pass a file factory on her way to school, related on account of the disagreeable odor.

"I wouldn't mind it so much, mamma," she remonstrated, "if I had been born with a deaf and dumb nose."

"Robert," queried the teacher of the new pupil, "do you know your alphabet?"

"Yes'm," answered Robert.

"Well, then, what letter comes after 'A'?"

"All the rest of 'em," was the triumphant reply.

Teacher—Harold, can you tell me what classical music is?

Harold—Yes'm. It's any kind a fellow can't whistle.

A little Chicago boy residing on the south side was amusing himself one day by copying the names of former Presidents. After reading them over an idea suddenly entered his small head.

"Why, papa," he exclaimed, "ever so many Presidents were named after streets in Chicago."

Don't Be Fooled

"FOOL me once," says the proverb, "and it's shame on you. Fool me twice and it's shame on me."

Don't be fooled when it comes to spending your money. Patronize the merchants who have a reputation for fair dealing and honesty. Such motives must actuate the consistent advertiser. The man who invests real money in building a reputation for himself and his merchandise cannot afford to risk any of it by taking unfair advantage of his patrons.

The consistent advertiser pays money to tell you about his goods. He knows they are good—he backs them with his money because he believes they will satisfy. Only merchandise which is consistently good can be consistently advertised.

So advertising protects you against fraud and inferiority. It tells you what is new and good, making you a wise buyer. It saves you money by pointing out for your consideration only the best products and the best places to buy them.

Thrifty men and women read the advertisements. To them it is a plain everyday business proposition—a duty they owe to themselves and to their pocketbooks. Don't be fooled.

Don't spend your money blindly

FISHING
This morning at the quiet brook
Of thought I baited well my hook
And dropped it in the rippling stream
And sought to catch me a bright dream.
I played the life of mine about
In little shallows in and out.
To right and left and left and right,
And never got a single bite.

And there I sat with line and hook
And fished for dreams in that still brook,
And some there were that nibbled on
The bait I had and then were gone.
And some there were that leaped in sight
Of me but none of them would bite.
I know the dreams were in that brook
But I could get none on my hook.

And then I changed the bait I had—
Perhaps my musings were too sad,
So I put on a bait for fun
To catch perchance a funny one;
But all my fishing in the brook
And all the baits upon my hook
Were quite in vain; and how I wish
I might catch just one single fish!

It's your fish, Reader, well as mine,
That's why I play my hook and line.
For what shall we two eat, I pray,
If I shall catch no fish today?
But pray have patience; there's a dream
I'm sure, a little bit upstream,
And you and I will not despair,
Perhaps we'll catch a fish up there.

BATTLE OF BOXING PROMOTERS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Success attending the introduction of boxing at the National league baseball park has developed a first class fight, involving no little politics, for the privilege at the new Yankee stadium.

Because the new home of the New York American league club will have a seating capacity of 100,000, rival promoters consider it the most valuable place for boxing around New York.

Tex Rickard is after the stadium with all the support he can muster. With boxing conducted in both the Manhattan ball fields, his big wooden saucer in Jersey City will be worth just about the second-hand lumber in it. If he fails to get the Yankee stadium, and it is understood from reliable sources, of information that he will, he will be out of luck entirely for summer boxing where the big money is centered.

Rickard also is being "smoked out" of Madison Square Garden, according to good information. Those who now control the Garden recently approached a prominent matchmaker in New York and asked him if he would be willing to take charge of the big arena for the winter season. He said he would entertain an offer if he could be assured of a free hand and negotiations are said to be still pending.

Rickard is said to be in bad with Tammany Hall and if the state should go Democratic this fall, the politicians say that he will have to step down from the czar throne of boxing.

His czar power, however, hasn't been as "czary" recently as it was two years ago when he was in absolute control of boxing around New York.

Dave Driscoll was the first to challenge the power of Rickard and he got away with it, so much so, that other of the "smaller" promoters have taken heart and are actively competing against Rickard.

Driscoll is the matchmaker of the Brooklyn ball club's fight department and he made a great financial success out of the past season. He used to confine his attentions to baseball, but he took up boxing when the law was passed in New Jersey and he made a big success of it.

The first real test of power between Rickard and Driscoll came in the skirmish to get Jimmy Wilde, the world's flyweight champion, to come over from England and fight Pancho Villa, the American champion, for the title. Driscoll got the contract and in his words—"It would knock a lot of eyes out if they saw the reasonable figure on the contract."

Previously when Rickard announced that he was after a certain fight or fighter, all the other promoters laid off through the belief that they couldn't buck him on a bidding game.

Some interesting angles on ballpark boxing are brought out by Driscoll, who maintains that both the Polo Grounds and the Yankee stadium are too big for boxing.

"Where are the fights that will draw 100,000 spectators? Dempsey and Wills, of course, but what other ones?" Driscoll says.

"Drawing power of boxing cards is grossly overestimated and exaggerated. Ask the ordinary fan how many fights have drawn 20,000 at the gate and he will say offhand that there were at least a hundred. Tell him to name them over and he can't."

"The Kilbane-Burns featherweight championship fight in Jersey City in 1919 drew 45,200 at $1 and $2 and it made a record up to that time. The Dempsey-Carpenter fight is on record for 30,000, but that is an overestimated number. Willie Jackson and Johnny Dundee made a record at Madison Square Garden last winter when they drew 13,000. Benny Leonard and Jack Britton drew 18,000 this summer and Harry Wills and 'Tut' Jackson drew the same for me in Brooklyn. Leonard and Kansas drew 27,000 in Harrison and Carpenter and Levinsky drew 11,000. Where are the bouts that will outdraw them and what good are seats for 100,000 when you have a tough time getting 20,000 to a fight."

LOS ANGELES CO. IS WORTH ONE BILLION

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 10.—All California property, including real estate, improvements, personal property and railroads, has a total value of $5,125,944,563.

This is according to figures issued today by State Controller Ray L. Riley, showing comparative property values, indebtedness and tax rates in the various counties of the state.

Of the grand total of state property, more than one-fifth is located in Los Angeles county, the figures show. There the property total is $1,573,418,167.

County indebtedness in the state is given as $119,221,295.33, with more than half that sum credited to San Francisco county, where the total indebtedness is $71,117,200.

MIX BULLDOGS THE MOON IN NEW PICTURE

Tom Mix will be here again today in his latest William Fox picture, "Chasing the Moon." This is another Mix whirlwind photograph, full of stunts and thrills, and at the same time packed with fun.

With his usual zest and his exhibition of the joy of living, the For star travels half way around the world in this picture. He cuts his hand and is told that deadly poison has entered into the cut. A certain professor knows the only antidote. Mix must reach the professor in a month or die; and the professor is about to sail for Russia. He starts on horseback, changes to an auto, and keeps swapping cars and motorcycles until he reaches the steamship pier—only to find the steamer has sailed; so he swims to a motorboat, and pursues the steamer, only to find his man took an earlier vessel. The professor keeps a couple of jumps ahead of Tom until first Russia, then Spain, is reached.

All this time his best girl (Eva Novak) is chasing Tom to tell him that after all he was not poisoned, but if he takes the antidote without having been poisoned he will die anyway. So it's a terrible mix-up. And what's worse bandits get on his trail. The stunts he does so bewilder the bandits that their brains begin to work backwards. But it all ends well.
